Githa Roelans is Head of the Multinational Enterprises and Enterprise Engagement Unit of the ILO's Enterprises Department. The unit provides policy advice and technical support on the application of the principles of the ILO Tripartite Declaration concerning Multinational Enterprises and Social Policy (MNE Declaration) to governments, employers, and workers in ILO member States and plays a central role in the ILO's engagement with enterprises.

The unit also coordinates the ILO approach to corporate social responsibility (CSR), especially in relation to the role of business on the Decent Work related Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). As such, she leads the ILO's engagement with other international organizations to enhance international policy coherence on the labour/employment dimension of CSR. The unit operates the ILO Helpdesk for Business providing guidance to companies that seek to integrate principles of international labour standards in corporate policies and operations.
