Kamal Meattle is the CEO of Paharpur Business Centre (PBC), New Delhi, India.

He was awarded a Life Time Achievement award by St. Joseph's College, North Point, Darjeeling, and received the MIT, USA, Distinguished Alumni Award

He is an environmentalist and an entrepreneur. He is also a Trustee of The Climate Reality Project, in India, set up by Nobel Laureate Al Gore

PBC is the first retrofit office building in India that is USGBC LEED Platinum besides a BEE 5star rated building, currently operating at an average annual energy use of under 20 Wh /hr /sqm.

It grows its own indoor fresh air enabling occupants to improve their productivity, cognitive ability and wellness in a safe environment.

It is certified for ISO 9001, 14001, 50001, SA 8000, OHSAS 18001 and it is FSSAI approved with a commitment to UN Global Compact and WEP. www.pbcnet.com

It has been rated as one of the healthiest office buildings in Delhi, with health benefits.

It is now a Pilot Project for WELL and should become the first building in India to be so rated

He spoke at TED, USA about "How to grow fresh air" using three plants, viewed by over 2.7 million people.
